WARE MALCOMB PROMOTES KEVIN EVERNHAM TO REGIONAL DIRECTOR OF PHOENIX OFFICE

PHOENIX (March 5, 2015) – Ware Malcomb, an award-winning international design firm, today announced that Kevin Evernham has been promoted to Regional Director of the firm’s Phoenix office. In this position, Evernham will continue to oversee numerous aspects of the firm’s business, including client relationships, client development, and all projects managed out of Ware Malcomb’s Phoenix office.

Evernham joined Ware Malcomb in early 2012 and was promoted to Regional Manager of the Phoenix office in August 2013. “Kevin has done an outstanding job of maintaining Ware Malcomb’s existing client base while adding new clients and project types to the Phoenix portfolio,” said Matt Brady, Ware Malcomb’s Regional Vice President for the Southwest. “Kevin has shown great skill as an architect and a manager, and we are enthusiastic about the continued growth and success of the Phoenix office under his leadership.”

Throughout his 20 year career, Evernham has been the Architect of Record on over 1,000 projects across the United States for high profile clients, including many Fortune 500 companies. His experience with multiple firms, as well as running his own firm for 7 years, includes firm management, design direction, project management, marketing, code analysis and staff development. He has designed award-winning projects in the areas of office, retail, industrial, library, high-tech, multifamily and custom residential projects. Evernham also has a passion and significant experience in restaurant design. He has been instrumental in capturing additional restaurant projects for Ware Malcomb, including new prototype designs and multistate roll out development.

Evernham earned his Bachelor of Architecture at the University of Illinois, at Urbana Champaign and his Masters of Architecture from Arizona State University. He is a registered architect in all 50 U.S. States, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.
