PLEASANTON, Calif. (November 5, 2020) – Ware Malcomb, an award-winning international design firm, today announced an expanded leadership role for Jim Terry as Principal of the Pleasanton office. In this new role, Terry takes on responsibility for the overall leadership, management and growth of the firm’s Pleasanton office.

Terry brings over 35 years of architectural, design, and management experience to his new position. He joined Ware Malcomb in 2003 as a Project Manager in Denver, relocated with the firm to Northern California in 2004, and a year later was promoted to Director, Commercial Architecture.

In 2015, Terry was promoted to Principal, Commercial Architecture in the firm’s Pleasanton office. In this role, Terry joined the firm’s senior leadership team in addition to overseeing all commercial architecture projects in Northern California. During his tenure, he has managed a variety of master planning, industrial and commercial office projects for the firm. Terry will now add the overall management and oversight of the Pleasanton office to his role.

“I want to congratulate Jim on his expanded leadership responsibilities as Principal of the Pleasanton office,” said Gary Drew, Regional Vice President of Ware Malcomb. “Jim has played a key role in the strong growth of our architecture practice throughout Northern California, and in his new role he will work closely with all practice leaders to manage and expand our design services in the region. In addition to leading our extremely talented Pleasanton team, Jim will have a particular focus on Ware Malcomb’s industrial business segment and the growth of this business across Ware Malcomb’s offices.”

Terry is a Licensed Architect in the state of California and is a graduate of the Phoenix Institute of Technology, where he received his degree in Architecture. He is a member of the American Institute of Architects and holds a Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) Accredited Professional credential from the U.S. Green Building Council.
